Bringing a Social, Emotional, and Cultural Lens to Preservice Teacher Education: Responding to New Teacher Performance Expectations
Who we are...

Since 2015, we are an independent Center under fiscal sponsorship of Community Initiatives.

Our Mission: to support integration of social, emotional, and cultural anchor competencies in teacher preparation programs, and in schools through training of teacher coaches and new teacher support providers.
Big Ideas...

- Teacher preparation is key lever for change
- Social-emotional learning must be addressed within social, political, & cultural contexts
- Need for common language
- Use a social, emotional and cultural lens
- Adults, as well as students, need to work on social, emotional, and cultural competencies
- It takes time!
Need for a common vision....
Social-Emotional Learning + Culturally Responsive Teaching =

Social, Emotional, and Cultural Lens
Using this lens in the classroom, teachers...

- ask different questions about their students;
- gather different kinds of data; and therefore;
- respond to students differently.
5 CASEL* SEL Competencies (30,000 feet high)

TEI Evaluation Design

➢ Mixed Methods Approach
➢ Pre/Post Surveys (TEI Fellows and Institutional)
➢ Focus Group
➢ Key informant interviews
➢ Review of artifacts and program documentation
➢ Impact Framework
➢ Separate studies for Cohort Two and Cohort One
TEI - Cohort Two vs. Cohort One

Cohort Two:

➢ 30 Fellows representing seven accredited teacher education programs across the US who participated in the 2018-2019 TEI

Cohort One:

➢ 12 Fellows representing five accredited university teacher preparation programs

➢ Follow-up study one year after Fellows participated in 2017-2018 pilot of TEI
2018-2019
Teacher Educator Institute (TEI)
Cohort Two Study Findings
Majority of Cohort Two respondents reported that TEI effectively met all program goals

Effectiveness of TEI in Meeting its Original Goals

Respondents who answered "very effective" or "extremely effective"

- Provides resources to integrate SEC into teach prep programs: 83%
- Promotes development of Fellow and student SEC skills: 79%
- Facilitates ability to apply Anchor Competencies Framework in course revision: 79%
- Develops ability to use "SEC lens" to guide instructional practice: 79%
- Promotes Fellow sharing of learnings & strategies to integrate SEC practices: 71%
- Facilitates ability to use Anchor Competencies Framework to guide programmatic revisions: 70%
- Facilitates ability to use Anchor Competencies Framework to guide fieldwork revisions: 61%
- Offers strategies & support to institutionalize SEC into teacher prep programs: 50%

Learning community was highly valued feature of TEI among Cohort Two

Usefulness of TEI Program Components in Deepening Understanding of SEC
Respondents who answered “very useful” or “extremely useful”

- Being part of a learning community of educators working towards common goal: 88%
- Retreat #2: 78%
- Zoom Meeting #3: Using an “SEC lens” to teach diverse students: 72%
- Zoom Meeting #2: Using an “SEC lens” with a teaching case: 72%
- Individual Program Meetings to discuss Fellow progress & challenges: 72%
- Zoom Meeting #4: Using an “SEC lens” in building a belonging classroom: 63%
- Zoom Meeting #1: Using an “SEC lens” with English Language Learners: 63%
- Retreat #1: 61%

Learning community was highly valued feature of TEI among Cohort Two

“The opportunity to have discourse with other teacher educators, share ideas, implementation challenges and successes was very useful to me and our team.”

“The most useful aspect of TEI was the deep, collaborative learning from fellows that will lead to collaboration beyond the Institute.”

“Opening up topics of conversations that need to be addressed and modeling how to have those conversations. Making connections with like minded teacher educators.”
Cohort Two: Increase in knowledge and application of social emotional and cultural competencies

Mean Ratings of Knowledge/Application of SEC Competencies

- Knowledge and application of SEL in teaching/learning practices: 59.00 (PRE), 77.09 (POST)
- Knowledge and application of CRT in teaching/learning practices: 63.39 (PRE), 76.48 (POST)
- Understanding of the connection between SEL and CRT: 62.30 (PRE), 82.00 (POST)

Examples of Progress in Cohort Two

- Development of common language
- Increased buy-in from multiple faculty across multiple colleges
- Redesign of course syllabi integrating SEC
- SEC framework adopted
- SEC integrated into lesson plan template
- Faculty began regularly using mindfulness
- Required course in SEC added to program
- Programmatic SEC needs assessment completed
Cohort Two Fellows recommend TEI

96% of 2018-2019 Fellows reported that they would recommend participation in the TEI to other teacher educators (n=24).
2018-2019
Teacher Educator Institute (TEI)
Cohort One Follow-up Study Findings
TEI universities in Cohort One vary in terms of integrating SEC competencies.

Overall Rating of Department on SEC Competencies

- Haven't incorporated SEL/CRT into program but hope/plan to: 0
- Have a few disconnected SEL/CRT efforts: 1
- Aiming to integrate SEL/CRT throughout program and taking some steps to get started: 3
- Have started making SEL/CRT a core theme of program: 1
- SEL/CRT is a well-integrated core theme throughout program: 0

Source: 2018-2019 TEI Cohort One Institutional Follow-Up Survey (N=5)
Examples of Progress in Cohort One

- Professional development sessions on social, emotional and cultural competencies
- Professional development sessions on social, emotional and cultural competencies among a pilot group of 5-8 supervisors
- Curriculum aligned to the California Teaching Commission (CTC) standards
- SEC-related workshops for Fellow’s department, senior administrators and faculty from multiple disciplines across the university
- Greatest progress made through TEI in leadership’s understanding of the value of SEC competencies and commitment to integration of competencies into teacher preparation program
Four key leverage points

1) Buy-in and support of high-level leadership
2) Cultural buy-in of the majority of the broader program faculty
3) Institutional and state-level policies and mandates
4) Commitment of resources including time and funding
Other lessons learned through TEI

- Competing priorities can impede progress.
- There is a need for a common language and framework.
- Faculty and staff are at various starting points.
- Efforts must be sustained over time.
- Professional learning communities are an effective way to develop SEC competencies.
- There is a need to align SEC work across all educators and practices within teacher preparation.
- There is a need for evidence showing impact of building the SEC competencies of teacher candidates.
Final quotes from TEI Fellows

“Participating in TEI brought to light the changes that we need to bring to our program.”

“TEI has been the driving force for us to follow through with what we knew was important. TEI helped us formally address SEC integration into our program.”

“TEI was powerful, transformative and educational. It achieved its goals and inspired me.”

The Unfolding Narrative

● Beginnings (April 2018)
● TEI Four-Day Retreat (August 2018)
● Fall Faculty Meeting Presentation (November 2018)
● Amplifying SEL/CRT into the CalStateTEACH Curriculum (April 2019)
● The Next Step (Spring 2020)
“At CalStateTEACH, TEI Fellows conducted a series of professional development sessions for faculty at system-wide and regional meetings. [We will] add an SEC expert to the curriculum committee to embed SEC competencies throughout program modules” (Espinoza, 2019)

“Changing the 'lens view' of the integration of SEL and CRT practices is a 'process'. The process is multilayered and begins with the foundation of examining historical and institutional structures, practices and policies that prevent, adhere and or sabotage how we 'serve' all students in our classrooms. Although appearing as a possibly 'insurmountable' task, with intentional focus and commitment, we can facilitate and advocate for effective SEL and CRT teaching and learning practices as we work with teacher educator colleagues, pre-service teacher candidates, and cooperating/mentor teachers.” (Hutchinson, 2019)
“As a result of attending the TEI and working with the Center for Reaching and Teaching the Whole Child, I have become more intentional about recognizing the Social/Emotional needs of my adult students and integrating that acknowledgment into my teaching and advising practices. Additionally, I consistently reference the cyclic way our work is set up - we, faculty, model socially, emotionally, and culturally relevant practices with our adult students that we hope they, in turn, use with their child students.” (Steiman, 2019)

“The TEI year-long professional development was excellent and impactful on both my professional and personal life! This experience helps me adapt to how I do observations; therefore there is always a question, comment, or recommendation that is specific to SEL/CRT during my pre and post-observation conferences with every teacher candidate.” (Brush, 2019)
“TEI has allowed me to consistently talk about how social-emotional competencies lie in every strategy a teacher candidate uses or does not use. TEI has also allowed me to better scaffold SEC based on the level of experience.” (Stewart, 2019)
Integrating social, emotional, and cultural anchor competencies in fieldwork at San José State University Elementary Education Program
Challenges to integration

1. Disconnect between what is taught in courses and what candidates experience in the field.
2. Supervision is often a temporary position (mostly adjuncts)
3. Supervisors often perceived as gatekeepers to the profession.
4. How to align supervision practice without scripting it?
What we did...

1. Prioritize relational aspects of mentoring. ‘Building trusting relationships’ as foundational.

2. Assets-based debrief process

3. Integrated assignments: student teaching and the classroom environment course

4. Supervisors as part of a professional learning community (both interdependent + autonomous)

5. Opt-in supervisor group that addressed the revised anchor competencies
What’s left to do

1. Continue to center culturally sustaining approaches to supervision.
2. Use videos to practice the debrief process.
3. Focus groups with candidates
4. Supervisor inquiry groups
5. Collaboration with other teacher education programs who are trying to address the same issue
